PURE PERSONALITIES.

The recent death of the unfortunate Viscountess Kingsland ends a life of strange vicissitude. She was married in 1819 to Viscount Kingsland, the needy representative of an old title. At his death she fell into the greatest poverty, and occupied a small room in a back street of Lambeth, with hardly any furniture. By making shirts at 2d. apiece, she managed to earn from 2s. to 3s. a week. For nearly twenty years she continued her employment of shirt-making, receiving occasional out-door relief from the parish. When she was seventy-nine she applied to the Universal Beneficent Society for aid. The committee immediately made her an allowance of 10s. per week, and eventually secured for her a gift of £100 from the Royal Bounty Fund. Afterwards a special subscription was raised, and a Government pension of £50 a year purchased for her, so that the last few years of her chequered existence were passed in comparatively comfort.

His friends who knew Zola a year or couple of years ago would not recognise him now. Zola has renewed his youthful slimness. He is no longer morose, no longer bears about him the stamp of unhappiness. Only one thing remains to be done to complete the transformation of the author of "Nana," and that is that he should in his next novel abandon the ugly side of human nature for his subject, and try the healthful side. Is there a reason for this transformation in the habits and temper of M. Zola? It appears there is. For some time he has had his eye upon a chair among the Immortals. The candidate for Immortality must ingratiate himself personally with each of the Forty. Zola, in short, must become respectable if he means to enter the Academy. And by all accounts he is succeeding in his endeavour.

A pretty story is told of the young Duchess of Portland, who is making herself universally beloved by her husband's tenantry, by gentle and thoughtful care for their welfare. Recently the duchess was passing through the famous underground passages at Welbeck and stopped to chat with the ancient retainer whose duty it is to act as guide in the subterranean regions. "Don't they give you an overcoat or a chair?" she asked; and the old man replied that they did not. In a day or two he was pleasantly surprised by the receipt of a comfortable suit of livery, a big overcoat, and an armchair cozily cushioned. So the name of the pretty duchess receives many subterranean blessings daily.

What a startling contrast between the character of William II. and his father, observes the Echo. The son is impetuous, self-confident, impatient; the father, gentle and yielding, hesitating often diffident. Perhaps the best sketch of his character yet written is that given by the famous German novelist, Herr Freytag, in his little book on the "Crown Prince." Freytag accompanied the Prince to the Franco-German war, and was in intimate relation with him. He gives a most pleasant picture of Frederick's gentle amiable ways. The older Frederick grew the more of a Hamlet he became. Curiously enough, only on one point did Freytag find the Crown Prince obstinate—his determination that the war should end with a proclamation of the Prussian King as Emperor of Germany. It was also clear that Frederick entertained dreams of trying some great social experiments for the good of the masses. So much the father and son have had in common; but, otherwise, it is extremely difficult to find any point, of resemblance between the father, as the great novelist drew him, and the son, as photographed by the newspaper correspondents.

Mr. Charles Dudley Warner is very tall, with a soldierly bearing and a fine, philosophic face and head. He is a famous "tramp," and gratifies his fondness for angling in many a mountain stream. Mr. Warner's copy is clearly written in violet ink, and although he never rewrites a MS. there are scarcely six erasures to as many pages. His working hours from ten until three, he spends in his comfortable study at home. The walls of which, covered with plain cartridge paper, form the artistic background to several fine pictures, and at half past three Mr. Warner goes out to the office of the Hartford Courant, of which he has long been the successful editor. Mr. Warner is full of sympathy and encouragement for young authors, and though like most men in his position in the literary world, he is bored to madness by letters from ambitious young writers, and requests for his opinions on their virgin efforts, he nevertheless answers most of them kindly and truthfully, just as he would have liked to have had some literary light beam kindly on him in his earlier efforts.

The De Looz scandal is still the subject of conversation in Paris. The Prince De Looz, a member of a well known Belgian aristocratic family, was married by Civil ceremony to the daughter of the Portuguese consul-general, Senor de Faria, but on the morning when the religious ceremony was to take place he refused to attend, unless his father-in-law first paid him £2,500. Senor de Faria gave the prince a black eye, but Mdle. de Faria remained in the peculiar position, being married according to French law, but not considering herself so by the ecclesiastical law. All attempts at reconciliation of the parties concerned have failed. The prince still sticks to his claim for £2,500, and Senor Faria has indignantly refused to concede to his request. The matter has been put into the hands of lawyers, who are considering the best means for releasing the young girl from her unfortunate position.

Joel Chandler Harris—Uncle Remus—is an old-fashioned man, who believes in the gospel of commonsense, eschewing new-fangled notions in general, and constantly affirming that the Bible and Shakspere are literature enough for any man. Though old fashioned he is not old. Using fun as a life preserver, he is joking from morning till night. Though Bill Nye was hardly warranted in accusing Mr. Harris of the fatal gift of beauty, the face of the genial story-teller is attractive on account of the mischievous merriment that is folded up in the creases of his double chin, and the light that shines in his rollicking eye. Mr. Harris likes to allude to his stories as the merest bosh, but it is easy to see that he is pleased by complimentary notices which come to him daily. He wears life like an easy shoe, and is a general favourite with his friends, who with one accord forgiven him his red hair and stubby moustache.

When the Duke of Edinburgh was absent from the late king of Portugal's funeral, some surprise was expressed, but no reason was given. The following remarkable story is now told of the matter. The Duke had prepared to go to the funeral. He had just taken his leave of the King and was crossing the grand vestibule of the palace to his carriage, when he fell to the ground in a fit of epilepsy, and began to dash his head against the marble floor. So startled and terrified were the Portuguese chamberlains and dignitaries in attendance by the contortions of his features and limbs that it was not until sharply rebuked by the Duke's equerry that they recovered their presence of mind sufficiently to lend a helping hand. In the meantime, however, the prostrate man had been permitted to bruise his face in such a manner as to render any appearance in public for several days absolutely out of the question. As soon as the fit had passed off, he returned to the Palace of Necessidades, and on the following morning, while the entire population was gazing at the funeral procession, and wondering at his absence, he drove down to the arsenal, and quietly went on board the Active where he spent the remainder of the day in the congenial society of his old mess mates. To such an extent were his features disfigured and discoloured from the effects of his fall, that he was forced to remain a full week at Lisbon before being able to start on his return journey.

If there were men in Germany like Herr Krupp there would perhaps be less need for men like Bebel. The former has just spent another £25,000 in building dwelling houses for his workmen and cookery schools for the wives and daughters. The son is only following the example of the father, and yet when the latter presented himself as a candidate for Parliament his workmen preferred a Socialist to him. Curious, certainly, when one considers that every one of those twenty-two thousand electors is engaged upon the manufacture of engines to destroy his fellow men.

An heir to Sir Henry Blake's great fortune has been discovered in the person of Mr. Daniel D Blake, of Fall River, Massachusetts. Sir Henry died in 1876, and shortly afterwards the agents of his London lawyers visited Fall River and inquired into Mr. Blake's origin. Nothing more was heard of them until November, when the lawyers themselves opened up communications with him, stating that Sir Henry had left a will in which the nearest relative on the male side was named as heir to his possessions. It was also mentioned that twenty-one years were allowed in which to find him and prove his claims. Mr. Blake, who thus apparently will step without dispute into a fine estate in Norfolk, with a large income, is in humble circumstances. He was worked part of his life in the mills, has kept a small store, and been a book agent. He is nearly helpless now, and he and an only child—a little girl ten years old—have been supported by his wife, who worked in the mill. Such is the story, and as it is announced that Mr. Blake is going to England this spring it is probably correct.

A Health-giving, Refreshing, Cooling, Sparkling, and Invigorating Summer Beverage, or for any Season, and a Gentle Laxative and Tonic in the various forms of Indigestion.

ENO'S "FRUIT SALT"

Invaluable to Residents in HOT COUNTRIES.

Is the best Preventive and Cure for

Biliousness.	Sick Headache.
Mental Depression.	Want of Appetite.
Skin Eruptions.	Pimples on the Face.
Constipation.	Vomiting.
Giddiness.	Feverishness.
Thirst, &c.	Unnatural Excitement.
Impure Blood.	Errors in Diet.

Instead of being lowering to the system, ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" is in the highest degree Invigorating, and does not cake or get hard in warm and humid Climates.

A SPARKLING AND REFRESHING DRAUGHT.—Notwithstanding its medicinal value, the "FRUIT SALT" must be looked upon as essential as breathing fresh air, or as a simple and safe beverage under ALL CIRCUMSTANCES, and may be taken as a sparkling and refreshing draught in the same way as Lemonade, Soda Water, Potass Water, &c., only it is much cheaper and BETTER, IN EVERY SENSE OF THE TERM, TO AN UNLIMITED EXTENT.

PRESERVING AND RESTORING HEALTH.—ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" acts as simply, yet just as powerfully, on the animal system as sunshine does on the vegetable world. It has a natural action on the organs of digestion, absorption, circulation, respiration, secretion, and excretion, and removes all impurities, and hinders (by natural means) the unnatural and dangerous accumulation of fat. It keeps the body in healthy trim, by preserving and restoring health.

TO PARENTS.—This preparation is invaluable in the nursery as a gentle laxative; it is pleasant to the taste, and much superior to senna or other nauseous drugs; it corrects the ill effects of over-eating or exhaustion, it is extremely beneficial in any feverishness or heat of the skin. The bowels ought to be kept free by the "FRUIT SALT" for a month or six weeks after eruptive diseases, as Measles, Scarlet Fever, Chicken-pox, Small-pox, and all Fevers or Infectious Diseases, &c.; for its use frees the system of the "dregs." Many disastrous results would be avoided by attending to this.

HOT COUNTRIES.—ACIDITY OF THE STOMACH, &c.—"I have personally used ENO'S 'FRUIT SALT,' and know it not alone to be excellent, but really invaluable. Especially must this be the case in the hot countries of the East, where Acidity of the Stomach, Biliousness, and Fevers are so common."—J. M. PEEBLES, M.D., Author of Around the World, Travels in Polynesia, China, India, Arabia, Egypt, &c., &c.

CAUTION.—Legal Rights are protected in every civilised country. Examine each bottle and see that the Capsule is marked ENO'S "FRUIT SALT." Without it you have been imposed on by a WORTHLESS IMITATION. Sold by all Chemists, &c. Prepared only at ENO'S "FRUIT SALT" WORKS, Pomeroy St., London, S.E., by J. C. ENO'S Patent.
